

About the Book

Text Type: Fiction/Science Fiction Page Count: 16 Word Count: 644

Book Summary

What happens when alien children don't mind their parents? Zorb wants to take over Earth using blasters. His mother suggests he leave Earth alone. When Zorb seems determined to take over the planet, his father decides to teach him a lesson about humans. In Grounded to Earth, students have the opportunity to retell and analyze a character while reading an interesting science fiction tale. Detailed, supportive illustrations and high-frequency words support emergent readers.

About the Lesson

Targeted Reading Strategy

- Retell

Objectives

- Use the reading strategy of retelling to understand text
- Analyze character
- Identify vowel digraph ay
- Recognize and use quotation marks
- Identify and use compound words

Materials

Green text indicates resources available on the website.

- Book—Grounded to Earth (copy for each student)
- Chalkboard or dry erase board
- Dictionary
- Large index cards
- Sticky notes
- Analyze character, vowel digraph ay, quotations marks worksheets
- Discussion cards

Indicates an opportunity for students to mark in the book. (All activities may be demonstrated by projecting the book on an interactive whiteboard or completed with paper and pencil if the books are reused.)

Vocabulary

*Bold vocabulary words also appear in a pre-made lesson for this title on VocabularyA-Z.com.

- Content words:
 Story critical: alien (n.), blasters (n.), lesson (n.), suit (n.), take over (v.), teleported (v.)
 Enrichment: huddled (v.), salute (v.), whack (v.)

Before Reading

Build Background

- Write the word grounded on the board and point to the word as you read it aloud to students.
- Ask students what they think the word grounded means. Support and discuss their understanding of the word. (A spaceship or airplane can be grounded or unable to fly. A child can be grounded or punished by taking certain privileges away). Ask students which meaning might be used in this story. Have them explain their reasoning.

- Have students explain what happens when they are grounded or punished. Ask them to give some reasons why someone might be grounded or punished.

Preview the Book

Introduce the Book

- Give students their copy of the book. Guide them to the front and back covers and read the title. Have students discuss what they see on the covers. Encourage them to offer ideas as to what type of book it is (genre, text type, fiction or nonfiction, and so on) and what it might be about.
- Show students the title page. Discuss the information on the page (title of book, author's name, illustrator's name).

Introduce the Reading Strategy: Retell

- Review or explain to students that one way to understand what they are reading is to stop now and then during reading to retell what is happening in the story.
- Explain to students that when someone retells something, they explain the details that happened in the order in which they happened. Point out that people retell stories as part of their daily lives, such as explaining the events of their day or the events on a television show.
- Invite students to retell the events of yesterday afternoon as they went home from school. Guide them by prompting: What did you do first? What did you do next? What was the last thing you did?
Think-aloud: As I read, I am going to stop once in a while to remind myself what has happened so far in the story. This will help me to remember what I'm reading and will make me think about what might happen next. When I finish the story, I should be able to tell someone what happened first, next, and last in the story.
- Ask students to discuss how retelling the events of their afternoon helped them remember what happened. Have students place sticky notes on pages 7, 9, and 11. Explain that as they read, they will stop on these pages to think about what has happened in the story. Encourage them to retell in their mind what happens in the story as they read.
- As students read, encourage them to use other reading strategies in addition to the targeted strategy presented in this section.

Introduce the Comprehension Skill: Analyze character

- Explain to students that all stories have characters, or the people or animals that the story is about. Remind students they can learn about characters by what they say, do, and think, as well as by what others say about them.
- Review or explain that readers try to find out what a character feels and thinks, what his or her personality is, and how that character changes over the course of the story.
- Read pages 3 and 4 of the story. Model how to analyze Zorb's character, on the basis of his actions.
Think-aloud: After I read page 4, I learned that Zorb wants to take over Earth. In the picture, I can see that the boy is screaming and jumping up and down. When people do this they are usually upset. His mom tells him to take a deep breath. I know that when a parent says to take a deep breath and count to ten, they want a child to calm down. On the basis of Zorb's and his mom's actions, I think he is feeling angry. I will keep looking for clues about how Zorb is feeling and how he changes by watching what he says and does as I read the story.

Introduce the Vocabulary

- Write the words from the book's glossary (story-critical vocabulary) on large index cards.
- Place students in small groups and give each group an index card with a word on it. Have them discuss what they know about the meaning of their word. Have them write a definition and draw a picture on their card. Pass the cards around the groups so all groups have the chance to contribute to each word.
- Review each word and the information that students wrote on the cards. Create a definition on the basis of the students' knowledge and write it on the board.

- Point out the glossary at the back of the book. Explain that a glossary and a dictionary contain lists of words and their definitions.
- Model how students can use a glossary to find a word's meaning. Have them locate the word lesson in the glossary and point to the word. Read the definition for lesson aloud. Compare the glossary definition with the definition on the board. Repeat with the remaining glossary words.
- Remind students of the word-attack strategies they can use to decode unfamiliar words, such as checking the picture and the beginning or ending sound of the word, breaking the word into smaller parts (chunking it), or reading the rest of the sentence and using context to decode the difficult word.

Set the Purpose

- Have students read to find out what Zorb does in the story. Remind them to think about what they are learning about him as they read.

During Reading

Student Reading

- Guide the reading: Give students their copy of the book. Have a volunteer point to the first word on page 3 (Zorb). Point out to students where to begin reading on each page. Remind them to read the words from left to right.
 - Model retelling.
Think-aloud: First, Zorb screamed and jumped up and down because he wanted to take over Earth. Next, his mom told him to calm down and to leave Earth alone. Then, his father explained that being more powerful than people on Earth did not mean they could take them over. Next, Zorb leaped past his parents and grabbed the controls of the spaceship. Then as he sped toward Earth, Zorb yelled, "Earth is mine!"
 - Invite students to retell pages 3–4 to a partner using their own words and the pictures in the book as a guide.
 - Ask students what they know about Zorb after reading these pages (he is angry and does not listen to his parents). Explain that we know these things about Zorb through his thoughts and actions, as well as what others say to him.
 - Check for understanding: Have students read to the end of page 7. Ask volunteers to retell the events from these pages. Then, ask students to use the pictures in their book to retell the events from the beginning of the story to a partner, using their own words. Encourage them to use the words first, next, and then in their retellings.
 - Have students read the remainder of the book. Remind them to continue stopping on pages with sticky notes to retell in their mind what they have read.
-  Have students make a small question mark in their book beside any word they do not understand or cannot pronounce. Encourage them to use the strategies they have learned to read each word and figure out its meaning.

After Reading

- Ask students what words, if any, they marked in their book. Use this opportunity to model how they can read these words using decoding strategies and context clues.

Reflect on the Reading Strategy

- Have volunteers retell the events that happened after the kids taught Zorb to play kickball. (No one made fun of him; he kicked the ball over the fence; he saw his mom and dad; he no longer wanted to take over Earth, but he wanted to play kickball.)
- Think-aloud: As I retold the story in my mind, it helped me to think about what happened in the story and how I could use my own words to retell the events in order.

Grounded to Earth

- Ask students to explain how retelling the events of a story in their mind as they read helped them understand and remember the story.

Reflect on the Comprehension Skill

- Discussion: Involve students in a discussion about the characters in the story. Point out an event in the story and ask students what that event tells about the character. For example: Zorb was mad because the kids made fun of him, but he took a deep breath and counted to ten. This example shows that Zorb took some of his mother's advice from earlier in the story. He is beginning to learn a lesson. Provide other examples as necessary. Also discuss with students how the main character in a story often changes from the beginning to the end as he or she learns from mistakes or solves a problem.
- Independent practice: Introduce, explain, and have students complete the analyze character worksheet. If time allows, discuss their answers.
- Enduring understanding: In this book, you learned about a boy from outer space who thought he could take over Earth. His parents wanted to teach him a lesson. Now that you know this information, do you think it's a good idea to listen to your parents or caregiver when they try to tell you something? Why or why not?

Build Skills

Phonics: Vowel digraph ay

- Review with students the long /a/ vowel sound. Write the word play on the board and say it aloud with students.
- Have students say the long /a/ sound aloud. Then run your finger under the letters in the word play as students say the whole word aloud. Ask students to identify which two letters represent the long /a/ sound in the word play (ay).
- Point out that there are different methods of creating the long /a/ sound in words and that the letter combination ay is one of those methods. Explain that ay is a digraph because it has two letters.
- Remind students that if a word has more than one syllable, the vowel digraph -ay may be in just one syllable of that word. Write the word player on the board and underline the first syllable. Ask students how they would read that syllable. Then read the word player aloud with students.
- Have students practice writing the ay letter combination on their desk while saying the long /a/ sound.
- Check for understanding: Have students work with a partner to name at least three words that contain the vowel digraph -ay. Have pairs share the words with the group.
- Independent practice: Introduce, explain, and have students complete the vowel digraph -ay worksheet. If time allows, discuss their answers.

Grammar and Mechanics: Quotation marks

- Write the following sentence on the board: "We have blasters!" Zorb said. Read the sentence aloud with students. Ask students to identify who is speaking in this sentence (Zorb). Ask them how they know (Zorb said).
- Ask students to look at the sentence and see if there are any other clues to show that a person is speaking. Circle the quotation marks.
- Explain that the marks at the beginning and end of spoken sentence are called quotation marks. They work as a signal to indicate the words are being spoken by someone in the story.
- Have students read page 10 as you read it aloud. Have students point to each quotation mark on the page. Ask students to share with a partner who is speaking in each sentence. Have students locate the sentence that does not have quotation marks. Point out that a character does not speak in this sentence.

Check for understanding: Have students locate and highlight the words spoken by a character on each page in the book. Then, have them circle the dialogue words and underline the speaker for each sentence.

- Independent practice: Introduce, explain, and have students complete the quotation marks worksheet. If time allows, discuss their responses.

Word Work: Compound words

- Write the word spaceship on the board. Ask students which two words were joined together to make the word spaceship (space and ship). Explain that spaceship is a compound word. A compound word contains two words that together create one word meaning. Explain that the definitions of two words can help students figure out the meaning of the compound word (spaceship is a ship that travels in space).
- Write the following sentence on the board: The kids played kickball. Have students read the sentence and identify the compound word (kickball). Ask them which two words were joined together to make the word kickball (kick and ball). Ask a volunteer to share how the definitions of the two separate words can be used to figure out the meaning of the compound word.
- Check for understanding: Have students brainstorm other compound words. Record them on the board. Have student pairs choose a compound word from the list. Then have them share how the definitions of the two separate words can be used to explain the meaning of the compound word to the group. Ask each child to write a compound word on a piece of paper and illustrate it.

Build Fluency

Independent Reading

- Allow students to read their book independently. Additionally, partners can take turns reading parts of the book to each other.

Home Connection

- Give students their book to take home to read with parents, caregivers, siblings, or friends. Have them analyze the characters with someone at home.

Extend the Reading

Science Fiction Writing and Art Connection

Have students fold a piece of paper in half. Ask them to draw a picture of Zorb at the beginning of the story on one side and a picture of him at the end of the story on the other side. Have them write a sentence under each picture describing Zorb and telling how he has changed.

Science Connection

Bring in and read resources about space travel. Discuss the items needed for space travel and the reasons they are needed. Make a list of items needed to travel in space. Discuss how a spaceship might be different from other kinds of ships.

Skill Review

Discussion cards covering comprehension skills and strategies not explicitly taught with the book are provided as an extension activity. The following is a list of some ways these cards can be used with students:

- Use as discussion starters for literature circles.
- Have students choose one or more cards and write a response, either as an essay or as a journal entry.
- Distribute before reading the book and have students use one of the questions as a purpose for reading.

Lesson Plan *(continued)Grounded to Earth

- Cut apart and use the cards as game cards with a board game.
- Conduct a class discussion as a review before the book quiz.

AssessmentMonitor students to determine if they can:

- consistently retell portions of the story to understand text during discussion
- accurately analyze the main character during discussion and on a worksheet
- correctly identify and write the vowel digraph -ay letter combination that represents the long /a/ sound during discussion and on a worksheet
- correctly understand and use quotation marks during discussion and on a worksheet
- correctly identify, use, and determine the definition of compound words during discussion and on a separate piece of paper
