Bringing the olympics and paralympics to london was quite a competition in itself. In a lengthy bidding process, nine rival cities were reduced to five finalists: london, madrid, moscow, new york, and paris.

The olympic and paralympic games use the same venues, in east london. The games centerpiece was the new olympic stadium, located within an area known as olympic park that was the setting for track-and-field events. Other new facilities in the olympic park include an aquatics center, a basketball arena, and a water-polo arena.
